

The Coat

By Julie Hunt illustrated by Ron Brooks

Make an origami coat (bookmark)

You will need:

- Sheets of newspaper or scrapbooking paper. For best results use the small print areas with little colour. (Additionally students can make their own collage original and photocopy the results) 15 cm for bookmarks
- Sheets of coloured paper (origami or scrapbooking paper 15 cm square)
- Glue or tape
- Paint or dye
- Fishing line
- Staples
- Origami Coat instructions

Instructions

1. To make a bookmark, use 15 cm square paper.
2. Follow instructions, step by step.
3. When folding is complete, glue or tape down flaps at back of coat
4. Write your name on the lapels at the front.

News for thought

REAL press release: "The Transform Tasmania Alliance has issued an eight-page web booklet calling on voters to support reform-minded candidates. ... A Compelling Case for the Reform of Tasmania's Legislative Council brought to you by Kittens are the most popular thing on the internet, so figured if you can't beat them, join them," TTA spokesman Mitchell said. "Reforming the Legislative Council is an urgent issue, but there's no way you can't read all about it by looking at pictures of kittens." Unquote.

China overtake the US as the largest oil importer by the Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries, the latest survey shows the American shale boom in the US is reshaping global oil markets. The shale boom in the US is expected to take the No 1 spot, OPEC report posted on its website.

ends hint dark matter

For the most common in the universe is dark matter, it has required billions of particles, making the payload of a shuttle flight and the operation of a laboratory on our heads.

though, it was anticipated it might have been the world's highest has found its first matter. Physicists were at the Alpha Magnetic Spectrometer, a $1.4 billion detector orbiting on the International Space Station, had elusive substance. It is invisible and all non-interacting, is five times more abundant than all the atoms and particles that make up the universe. Its gravity literally holds our solar system together. But it has never been observed.

YESTERDAY, on 107.3FM in Taree, NSW, Tony Abbott voiced his admiration for Margaret Thatcher and reminisced about his old red Valiant: "We used to call it General Belgrano because, you know, it was big and it didn't always get to its destination." Ah, yes, that would be the Argentinian warship Thatcher had sunk outside the exclusion zone during the Falklands war, killing 323. As his host Craig Huth replied, "Good memories, good memories." Ahem. Moving along, who has Abbott's Belgrano now?
